Bachelor of Arts in Urban Studies
At Wayne State University

95 percent of the American population lives within commuter range of a city. Most jobs are urban-related. It pays to be knowledgeable about the urban world.

The Urban Studies Program is a rigorous, cross-disciplinary course of study leading to a Bachelor of Arts degree in Urban Studies. The program also offers a minor in the field.

In the program, students gain in-depth understanding of:
- how cities and metro areas came to be;
- the physical forms urban areas take;
- the social, political, and economic relationships in these areas;
- the costs and benefits of urbanization;
- the role of planning and public policy in shaping the quality of life and opportunity for residents of metro areas.

The Bachelor of Arts in Urban Studies prepares students for:
- advanced training in traditional academic disciplines, such as history, sociology or political science;
- training in professional fields with urban foci, such as law, public administration, and urban planning;
- vocational activities with an urban orientation such as community organizing, policy advocacy, and social service provision;
- citizenship in an increasingly urban world.

Annual Flower Sale, Detroit Eastern Market
At the turning point between the twentieth century and the twenty-first, a new kind of economy is coming into being, and a new kind of society, and a new kind of city: some might say no city at all, the end of the city as we know it, but they will doubtless be wrong.

Sir Peter Hall

But a city is more than a place in space, it is a drama in time

Sir Patrick Geddes
